GOVERNOR FAILS TO FORCE HIS TAX COMMISSION BILL

Loses Sensational Fight After Call of the House to Compel Reconsideration

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE IS DEFEATED

Glenn Referendum Bill Lost in the Senate by One Vote This Morning

DELAY THE CONSOLIDATION BILLS

Big Administration Measures Are Put Over Until Next Wednesday and Thursday

MADISON, Wis., June 24. — The assembly today refused to reconsider the Philipp bill abolishing the tax commission by a vote of 46 to 42 after one of the most sensational parliamentary battles ever held in the lower house. The call of the house ordered at last night's session was renewed at nine o'clock this morning. At 11 o'clock the sergeant at arms reported that all absent members in the city had been accounted for. Members absent without leave were Duffy, Franzen, Herzog, Laing, Moran and Johnson.

After a parliamentary tangle, during which every rule governing the procedure of the house was brought into play, reconsideration was finally reached.

The Roll

On roll call the bill was disposed of as follows:

Against reconsideration: Ballard, Biel, Byse, Dobie, Engebretsen, Falk, Feldhausen, Freehoff, Gruenewald, Hager, Hambrecht, Julius Hansen, Heathcote, Hess, Hoffman, Janssen, Jensen, Kay, Kent, Krembs, Lathrop, Lantz, McGowan, Melvin, Metcalfe, Minkley, Mortenson, Nordman, Nye, O'Brien, Ofstie, Pickart, Poole, Rentz, Schroeder, Smith, Spoor, Stewart, Tews, Van DeSant, Vint, Waldron, Weber, Wells, Whitcomb, Zinn.—46.

For reconsideration: Arnemann, Aulenbacher, Beckwith, Berninger, Bradley, Caldwell, Cretney, Crosby, Dickie, Dixon, Donnelly, Edwards, Ellingson, Everett, Gamper, Grell, Carl Hansen, F. S. Hansen, Harrington, Hart, Hedding, Heim, Killa, Kretlowa, Kubasta, Kubatazki, Kurtenacker, Laursen, Morgan, Murphy, Nelson, Neumeister, Pieper, Ploeger, Prescott, Reinhardt, Schindler, Stemper, Van Gordon, Winegar, Woodward, Whittet.—42.

Those changing their position in support of the governor were: Donnelly, Reinhart and Stemper, all of Milwaukee. Those voting for the bill on engrossment, but voted against reconsideration were: J. B. Janssen, Krembs, Lathrop and Stewart.

Suffrage Loses

Women suffrage went down to defeat in the senate on final passage in the senate this morning. The Glenn bill providing for a state-wide referendum was killed by a vote of 16 to 15. Senator Ackley immediately moved a reconsideration and action on this motion went over until next Thursday.

The defeat of the bill, which had already been ordered engrossed, came about as the result of the change of the votes of Senators Everett and Ackley, both of whom supported the bill on engrossment.

Defer Big Bills

Action on the consolidation bills went over again until next week, the board of agriculture bill until Thursday, and the public wefare until Wednesday when it will be considered in the committee on the whole at 2 p. m.

The senate killed without a dissenting vote the Ofstie resolution to prevent the further introduction of bills. Senator Burke characterizing the resolution as uncalled for and a handicap on the legislature for the proper consideration of legislation that might arise.

The Staudenmayer bill, providing for the appointment of civic secretaries met defeat.

Bills affecting terms of office of Milwaukee city officials went over until tomorrow.

"ON TO PARIS" IS BERLIN CRY SINCE FALL OF LEMBERG

Wave of Enthusiasm Controls German Capital Since Victories in Galicia

MAY MOVE TROOPS WESTWARD

Rumor Is That Mackenzen Will Abandon Galician Operations to Fight in the West

BERLIN, via The Hague, June 24. —"On to Paris," was the cry that ran through Berlin today on the wave of enthusiasm that has followed the capture of Lemberg.

Popular sentiment unanimously favors an abandonment of the Galician offensive in favor of a gigantic drive on the French capital. In the streets, in the shops, everywhere, people gathered to talk of the victory over the Russians and voiced the belief that the Galician army hosts should be hurried from their scenes of triumph in the east and hurled against the French and British lines in northern France.

No Hint from War Office.

Obviously no hint has come from the war office regarding what is to follow the fall of Lemberg. But well informed military men have today doubted that Mackenzen's armies would be seen in action along the Franco-Flanders line in the near future. The general belief is that Germany will send reinforcements into the Russian Baltic provinces and renew the drive upon Riga. The kaiser is said to be determined to deal the czar's armies a blow from which they cannot well recover before starting a fresh offensive against the French.

Victories Important.

In official circles it was declared today that the importance of the Austro-German victories in Galicia cannot be over-estimated. It was pointed out that since Mackenzen began his forward movement May 1 he has retaken more territory than is included in the New England states of America. He has practically cleared Galicia of enemy troops and has recovered a territory rich in copper, zinc and oil. Miners already are enroute to Galicia to re-open the abandoned shafts where copper deposits as rich as those of Michigan and Montana lie buried.

SEATON SUSPENDED

NEW YORK, June 24.—Tom Seaton, the Brookfeds' star hurler, was suspended today for five days by Manager Magee. Failure to keep in condition was the reason assigned. Seaton has vowed he will not stand a suspension of salary along with his five days.

It Was a Happy Convention For All These Folks

The Eagles' convention was not without its touch of color for at least two people of La Crosse. Those two people are Emil Wolfram, who by the way is an Eagle, and Mrs. Lottie Nimocks, 323 South Sixth street, mother of Mrs. Percy Robare-Nimcks. They were married yesterday forenoon in the county clerk's office in Winona by Judge F. H. Somnen, who officiated in the absence of Judge Vance. The ceremony was performed a few minutes after the license was taken out. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfram returned to La Crosse yesterday noon in time to see the Eagles' parade. They will live in La Crosse.

ROBERT LANSING APPOINTED SECRETARY OF STATE BY WILSON

Two Recent Photographs of Robert Lansing, Who Was Yesterday Appointed as Premier o f Wilson Cabinet

This statement was given out at President Wilson's office at six o'clock Wednesday:

"Before leaving this evening for a brief rest in New Hampshire, the president announced he had offered the post of secretary of state to Mr. Robert Lansing, present councillor of the state department, and that Mr. Lansing had accepted."

Lansing a New Yorker

Robert Lansing was born at Watertown, N. Y., October 17, 1864, entered Amherst college in 1882, graduating in 1886. He studied law in Watertown three years and practiced until 1907. In 1890 he married Eleanor Foster, only daughter of John W. Foster, who succeeded James G. Blaine as Harrison's secretary of state.

For twenty-three years he has served on various commissions.

STATE AID WILL BE ASKED FOR THE TORNADO VICTIMS

Prairie du Chien Champions to Appear Before Legislature to Plead Cause on Monday

TWENTY-FIVE FAMILIES IN NEED

Are Without Homes and Food and Prospects of Crop Are Gone as Result of Tornado

Twenty-five destitute families in the vicinity of Ferryville, Reedsburg and Soldiers Grove, made so by the tornado of Saturday, June 12, may be given state aid through a legislative appropriation.

Judge W. R. Long and District Attorney Munson, Prairie du Chien, on Monday will go before the legislature at Madison with a plea for aid.

"I see no other means of helping these people," said Judge Long, in an interview to The TRIBUNE today. "We shall point out the urgent need of approximately one hundred people, now without homes and food, and with all prospects of crops wiped out."

Several towns in the vicinity of the stricken country have raised small funds and individual generosity has known no bounds in giving what aid was possible, but the real needs of the people whose farm buildings were wiped out has not been touched, according to the Prairie du Chien men.

District Attorney Munson and Judge Long yesterday concluded a thorough tour of the tornado-swept ridges south of Ferryville, and the country below there, and in the vicinity of Reedsburg. They investigated the stories of suffering reaching Prairie du Chien, and were impressed with the pressing need.

Several of the farmers wrecked by the wind had practically everything invested in equipment, stock and their buildings, and in many instances had mortgaged their farms. Many who would probably have been wealthy in a few years will now, unless aid is granted, probably have to leave their farms.

OIL FIRED

CUSHING, Okla., June 24—Heavy smoke still hung today over the oil district from big burning wells. Close to 400,000 barrels of oil, it is estimated, have been destroyed as the result of lightning.

The Prairie, Gulf, Gypsy and Oil and Gas company have suffered the heaviest losses.

DEATH LIST IN CALIFORNIA QUAKE RAISED TO SIX

Three Known Men and Three Unidentified Chinese at Mexicano Found in the Ruins

PROPERTY LOSS ABOUT $350,000

Residents of Imperial Valley Fear Floods from Breaking of Irrigation Dams

CALEXICO, Cal., June 24.—The death today of Frank Smith, a violinist, brought the total known fatalities in Tuesday night's earthquake in the Imperial valley to six. Smith was injured in Mexicali, Mexico, where James Pencil, 82, succumbed to his injuries yesterday and James Bach, 45, was killed under falling walls. Three unidentified Chinese or Mexicans were found in therunins of the Chief Buckhorn gambling hall at Mexicali.

The latest estimates of the property damage in the valley do not exceed $350,000.

Among the many persons injured during the earthquake only John Hazley, a laborer here, may die. He suffered a concussion of the brain and other injuries from flying bricks.

The clearing away of the debris here and in Mexicali is proceeding rapidly. The gambling halls in the disreputable "Monte Carlo" across the border had hardly been relieved by the earth tremors than games of chance were resumed in temporary lean-tos or in the cleared spaces.

Fear Break of Dams

EL CENTRO, Cal., June 24.—In fear of further earthquake shocks letting out the flood of waters behind great irrigation dams, Imperial valley towns were clearing away the debris today of Tuesday night's tremors that did from $250,000 to $1,000,000 damage, variously estimated, and reported cost two to four lives.

Report Slight Break

A slight break in the Alamitos canal and sagging at the Sharp's dam were the only danger signals left in the waterways but new tremors, if violent, might result in an acute flood situation for the settlers in the valley.

Hundreds Homeless

Hundreds of families were still homeless and forced to camp out in the open, many without shelter of any kind. None suffered from want of food, however. The relief and salvage work is progressing rapidly and barring additional shocks conditions will be fairly normal again within a short time.

MEXICAN OFFICIALS LEAVE WASHINGTON TO SEE CARRANZA

Will Try to Persuade the Leader for Conference with Other Factional Leaders

AMERICAN PROSPECTORS MISSING

Gonzales Advance on Capital Stops When He Learns the City Is Occupied by Zapatistas

WASHINGTON, June 24—Charles A. Douglas and Eliseo Arredondo, representing the Mexican semi-officialdom that has been in existence here ever since the break with Huerta, will leave late today for a conference with General Carranza near Vera Cruz. It was known they will endeavor to persuade him to agree to a conference with the other Mexican factional leaders with a view to establishing a provisional government which the United States and the A. B. C. powers can recognize.

This is understood to be the "trump card" that friends of the administration promised to play after the president announced his abandonment of "watchful waiting" in Mexico.

Carranza's stubbornness is admitted seriously to have interfered with the administration's conciliation plans, but Douglas is understood to feel certain that after the attitude is explained to him there will be no further war moves by Carranzaistas. Villa's promise to accept any plan suggested already has been transmitted to the United States by Consular Agent Carothers.

Trouble Near Border

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 24.—Anti-American activity featured reports from Mexico early today. Two American prospectors named Fielding and Norton, have been missing for several weeks in the interior of Sonora. At the end of fruitless searching, friends of the two men entertain the worst fears.

Americans Arrested

Maytorenistas have jailed Millard Haymore and Arthur Jamison, Americans, owners of the Sonora Mercantile company at Naco. No charges have been lodged against them as yet. United States Consul Simpich has made strong representations in behalf of the men to General Maytorena, the Villista governor of Sonora state.

Colonel Bates, a rich American cattleman, also is reported to have been arrested at Caborca, Sonora, on a charge of circulating Carranzista money.

Gonzales Halts Advance

GALVESTON, Texas, June 24.—General Gonzales' advance on Mexico City has halted. Learning that Zapatistas are strongly entrenched in the city, the Carranzista chieftain kept his forces outside in the hope that Zapata will surrender to save the city the horrors of a big battle, according to word to Mexican Consul Burns today. The message added that Gonzales is not cut off from communication with Vera Cruz. Obregn was reported to be at Encarnacion, expecting to occupy Auguas Calientes tomorrow.

Zapatistas Hold City

The Galveston story that General Gonzales had delayed an assault because its defenders were entrenched and he wished to spare the people the horrors of a battle was confirmed.

"It is expected, however," said the statement, "that when the Zapatistas see the futility of defense they will surrender or evacuate. Supplies will be taken in as soon as conditions permit even possibly before evacuation."

The Villa agency claimed a Villista victory over the Carranzistas at Icamola, west of Monterey, with heavy losses to the enemy.

COULDN'T POSSIBLY HAVE KISSED FOR A MINUTE SAYS DOCTOR

NEW YORK, June 24.—Mrs. Mina Tempest simply couldn't have curled her lips about those of Edward F. Robertson, millionaire importer, while the clock ticked off sixty seconds, Dr. Oscar M. Leiser testified today in Mrs. Robertson's suit for divorce.

"Mrs. Tempest was in such a highly nervous state it would have been impossible for her to have kissed any man for a full minute," said Dr. Leiser. "It would have done her irreparable injury."

AGGIE EDITORS MEET

MADISON, Wis., June 24.—Twenty-two delegates to the American association of agriculture college editors met here today for their third annual conference at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Forest Crissey, well known writer, and G. W. Wharton, chief of the agricultural information department of the agricultural station at Washington were speakers today.

The association meets Friday for its final session.

EAGLES FLOCK FROM CITY AS CLOSING NEARS

Marching Clubs Leave City This Morning but Business Session Holds Nearly All Delegates

The Eagles are flying away.

Morning trains bore many marching clubs and drill teams out of the city, although a large majority of the official delegates stayed for the closing business session this morning and aided in electing state officers, and designating the next convention for Grand Rapids.

All bore happy smiles, and although tired, as the Eagles left, ehey bid cheery goodbyes to the La Crosse birds and all gave thanks for the entereainment they received.

The greatest exodus of Eagles out of the city began with the close of the session early this afternoon.

Milwaukee, Racine, Janesville and Marshfield aeries will leave on special trains for their home cities following the steamboat excursion tonight.

Grand Rapids Springs Big Surprise in Morning Session by Being Only Bidder for 1916 Convention

State officers elected:

State president, R. J. Strauss, Marshfield.

State vice president, C. W. Hathaway, Beaver Dam.

State Secretary, C. A. Dittman, La Crosse.

State treasurer, R. A. Bloedorn, Antigo.

State trustees: W. H. Armstrong, chairman; C. A. Craft, Madison, and M. H. Niesen, Kaukauna.

Grand Rapids will be the 1916 Eagles' convention city.

Dittman State Secretary

C. A. ("Charley") Dittman, secretary of the La Crosse Eagles and the man who has done more for La Crosse Eagledom than any other, will keep the books of the state aerie for one year. Defeating J. C. Nichols, Janesville, former state president, almost unanimously, the local man put La Crosse Eagledom on the map and the aerie hall on South Fifth street responded to the honor given the convention city by cheer after cheer.

"Antigo Dick," the famous Eagle of Wisconsin, and the 1916 Eagles' convention go to Grand Rapids. "Antigo Dick" will remain the property of the Grand Rapids aerie until next year.

With the biggest wave of enthusiasm during the long business session starting early this morning and continuing until 2 o'clock this afternoon, C. A. ("Charley") Dittman, secretary of the La Crosse aerie of Eagles, was overwhelmingly elected state secretary.

J. C. Nichols, Janesville, for eight years holder of the position, gave him the only opposition offered. Dittman's vote was 136 against 33 for Nichols.

R. J. Strauss, elected state president, and C. W. Hathaway, elected state vice president, were given no opposition, and were elected unanimously.

W. H. ("Billy") Armstrong, until today state president, was elected chairman of the state trustees in view of the office which he leaves.

Resolutions heartily thanking the citizens of La Crosse, the local aerie of Eagles, and the press for their efforts in making the 1915 convention a grand success were presented and adopted.

The big surprise of today's business session occurred when it was learned that there was to be no opposition to Grand Rapids' bid for the 1916 convention. Several made addresses, and a standing vote signified the state Eagles' desire that the big time next year be given to that city.

The outgoing officers made stirring addresses, thanking the delegates for privileges and support given them during their terms of office, and pledging themselves and their support as long as Eagledom and they were alive.

The incoming officers were called upon for speeches and responded, pledging themselves to support the best interests of the order.

One of the biggest fights of the session was looked for in the race for state secretary. Louis B. Omerberg, chairman of the automobile committee during the convention and one of the hardest workers during the week, made an urgent plea for Dittman. He pointed out to the delegates that Dittman had never asked for state offices, and in

JUDGE REFUSES TO SENTENCE BANKRUPT

Judge Geiger Says He Conducted Bankruptcy Sale and Found It Full of Fraud

MILWAUKEE, June 24.—Federal Judge Geiger today refused to pass sentence on Jacob C. Rubin, who with his wife, Emma Rubin, was indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of perjury in connection with bankruptcy proceedings arising from the failure of their cloak store in Racine. The judge's action was based on the fact that he had conducted the bankruptcy case, and during its course had publicly stated that it bristled with fraud and that he did not believe Rubin's testimony.

The Squirrel Wasn't Timid Any More.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Story of the Inquisitive Squirrel.

"A SQUIRREL is inquisitive," claimed daddy. "Under ordinary circumstances, too, he's timid. But the less timid he becomes the more inquisitive he is."

"What's 'inquisitive,' daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"I know," said Jack. "It's wanting to find out about things, isn't it?"

"Yes, Jack," replied daddy. "Little boys and girls are inquisitive, and grown people ought to be, but sometimes they get tired and don't seem to care any more, I'm sorry to say, for it is a very nice thing to be inquisitive in the right kind of way.

"But I was going to tell you about this squirrel. He lived out in a lonely piece of woodland, and he didn't meet many people. So he was not used to human beings. He was afraid of them. When he would see a man or a boy or a woman or a girl coming down the brown woodland path he would just scamper out of sight in the greenery and watch the intruders with his beady eyes till they had gone away.

"He was a red squirrel, a cunning little fellow with a twitchy nose and a bushy tail and with the softest, brightest dark eyes you can imagine. But he was awfully afraid of people because he wasn't used to them.

"One day a man came through the woods. He was an old man with gray whiskers and a very kind face, the nicest looking old man. He walked with a cane, and he loved animals and birds very much.

"He saw that little red squirrel, and the red squirrel saw him and scampered for cover just as fast as he could go.

"Now, the old man saw the red squirrel looking at him through the greenery with his little bright eyes, and the old man smiled. Then he took a seat upon a fallen log and drew from his pocket a book and began to read.

"By and by the old man's hand was placed in his pocket, and he drew out some nice cracked walnuts, and he tossed them over toward the squirrel, so that they fell very close to the greenery where the little fellow was hiding.

"The squirrel was badly frightened at first and hurried a little distance back. But the old man kept on reading, and before long the squirrel came timidly out and got those walnuts.

"And what do you think? Why, before the season was done that squirrel was just climbing all over that man for nuts and other goodies. He would take the nuts out of his pocket or even between his teeth. You see, the old man was so kind that the squirrel wasn't timid any more, and they were great friends."

Man Liked Kiss Given Him By "Love Pirate"

NEW YORK, June 24.—A one-minute kiss that Mrs. Mina Tempest, alleged "love pirate," is said to have implanted on the lips of Edward F. Robertson, millionaire importer, was described by James F. Finn, a witness in Mrs. Robertson's allenation suit today.

"Did Robertson like it?" Finn was asked.

"Sure," he responded, "he was waving his hands like Sousa leading a band."

JUDGE A. E. HELM SCORES RAILROADS

WASHINGTON, June 24.—After looting their own treasuries, the railroads are asserting now that they must increase freight rates to bolster up their finances, Judge A. E. Helm told the Interstate Commerce commission yesterday.

He was opposing advanced rates in western classification territory. Speaking for grain producers and millers, he said the farmers and ultimate consumers would be the losers.

J. J. Norton spoke for the railroads.

MIRELLA'S BARGAIN

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"Mirella," shrilled Aunt Keziah, "you've got to go down to Bascom's and get some tea. I declare, I didn't know we were so nearly out."

Mirella Elwood put aside her sewing, and, taking her hat, went out into the early June evening. "I'll stop at Miss Dorr's and look at a hat," she called back over her shoulder.

"Pick out something that will last you two years—you know you've been saving that money for a long while," warned Aunt Keziah from the front porch.

Mirella smiled with pleasurable anticipation as she went down the quiet village street. It had been a long time since she had had a new summer hat.

By dint of many economies and the earnings of extra money through the eye of her clever needle she had saved enough to buy a few simple summer dresses and a new hat. She was thinking of the hat as she went down the street. It was to be an ecru Tuscan trimmed with red roses. Her best gown of ecru voile would look lovely with that much-dreamed-about hat.

Mirella was very happy as she turned into Bascom's big grocery store, where more than one preson nodded a greeting and then passed to look after her with admiring eyes. Mirella grew prettier every day, they thought; she had a clear, white skin with soft, rose coloring, lustrous hazel eyes, long curling black lashes, and quantities of waving black hair.

At the back of the store Mirella found William Bascom in conversation with a shabby youth.

"No, no!" Mr. Bascom was saying harshly. "I can't do it. There don't nobody in Fernville take no stock in fiddles. I wouldn't lend you ten cents on it, but I will give you out, and out—"

"I'm not asking for charity!" retorted the youth hotly. "I've told you that I merely want to borrow enough money on it to get home to New York. As soon as I get there I will send it to you and you can send the violin down by express and—"

"I can't do it," said Bascom decisively. "I've heard these hardluck stories before, young man! I won't give you any money, but I wouldn't turn any one away hungry."

"No thank you!" declined the youth fiercely, and, jamming his soft felt hat down on his fair hair, he picked up a bundle wrapped in green paize and marched out of the store, followed by many curious glances.

"Well, Mirella, what can I do for you?" asked Mr. Bascom in his most genial tone.

Mirella made known her want and left the obsequious Bascom wondering at her haste to leave the store.

Across the street were Miss Dorr's millinery parlors. Behind those Nottingham lace curtains were the straw hats and the red roses that she coveted.

Mirella banished all thought of the hat and the roses and followed after the youth and the violin. Before she was up with him, he turned aside from the road way and flung himself on the ground, his face hidden by his arms. Mirella saw that his clothes were dusty and worn, his shoes in sorry condition and that the hat which he had tossed aside showed hard wear.

Coming up, she coughed gently to attract his attention.

With a slight exclamation the boy—he was scarcely seventeen—jumped up and stared at her out of wet blue eyes.

"I beg your pardon," he stammered. "I'm afraid I am obstructing the path." He stood aside to permit Mirella to pass.

But she stood still and looked at him gravely.

"I followed you," she said quietly.

He flushed hotly. "You followed me?" he repeated.

"I happened to be in the store when you were trying to sell your violin, and I've always wanted to play the violin—and I came to see if you wouldn't sell it to me."

An eager look came into his face. "Do you really mean it" he gasped. "It would mean a lot to me if I could sell it for five dollars. The money would take me back to New York, and once there—my father—" He choked and turned away his head.

Mirella was opening her little green purse. From it she extracted a five-dollar bill—it represented the new summer hat—and handed it to him.

"There!" she smiled cheerfully. "You have got what you want and when you give me the violin, why, I shall have what I have always desired."

"It cost two hundred dollars," said the boy as he laid it in her hands. "If I was anywhere except in this benighted country region I might pawn it for fifty dollars. But your five dollars has saved my life—I was discouraged, down and out. I was ready to step out of life. But everything is changed now. I can go home and even if I confess I have failed it will be something to see the home faces again." He choked suddenly and held out his hand. "Goodby," he said gruffly. "Do you mind telling me your name?"

"Mirella Elwood," said Mirella, her own eyes bright with tears.

"Mirella! That's a pretty name and easy to remember—but it would be hard to forget you, anyway," he said with boyish admiration in his voice. "Goodby, Mirella! You're a brick!"

Mirella smiled through her tears and shook his hand warmly. "Goodby—and good luck!"

When he had disappeared Mirella tucked the green bundle under her arm and went home. The glow of satisfaction that pervaded her unselfish heart carried her safely past Miss Dorr's little shop. It was not until she opened the gate and saw Aunt Keziah's anxious face that she realized that a bad half hour was before her.

"Where under the sun have you been?" demanded Aunt Keziah. "What have you got in that bundle? Not the hat, "I'll be bound!"

Haltingly, Mirella explained her transaction with the youth. "It's worth two hundred dollars," she added in order to placate the irate woman.

"Two hundred fiddlesticks!" retorted Aunt Keziah sharply, filling the teapot. "But it's none of my business, Mirella Elwood. If you'd rather have a twanging fiddle than a new hat, why, I don't care a mite, only folks will certainly laugh at you for wearing that old black straw another season."

One hot August morning the Elwoods were making blackberry jam. Mirella sat on the back porch looking over the luscious fruit and her finger tips and her lips were stained with the ruddy juice. In the kitchen Aunt Keziah was singing in a high cracked voice some ancient ditty of her faraway youth.

A quick step sounded on the graveled path and Mirella looked up to see a tall young man standing before her.

"Miss Mirella Elwood?" he asked, bowing, hat in hand, before her.

"Yes," said Mirella.

"My name is Hastings," he explained, "George Hastings. I came to thank you for your kindness to my brother a few weeks ago. Some of us would have some down before this, but Harry has been seriously ill with typhoid."

Mr. Hastings sat down on the steps and in a few words related the story of young Harry Hasting's passion for music and desire to adopt it as a profession. The elder Hastings being a man of hard, practical ideas, had opposed the notion, and finally, Harry had run away from home.

"When I stopped at the postoffice to inquire the way to your house, the postmistress took occasion to inform me concerning the adventure with my brother and now, I know the whole story—how you sacrificed a much desired hat in order to help save a boy from starvation."

Merilla blushed confusedly. It had seemed such a simple thing to do at the time, with Harry's hungry, homesick eyes upon her; but to hear it filled her with a wild desire to run away and hide herself.

"It is nearly time for winter hats now," she stammered, "and I really didn't mind it at all. Tell me, is your father going to allow Harry to study music?"

"Yes; he has promised him that he shall go to Paris as soon as he recovers his strength. The boy is wild over it. I have promised to bring him down here as soon as he is able to ride."

Aunt Keziah, who had heard heard enough to satisfy her curiosity, had hastily changed her dress. Now, she came out in a lilac dimity gown with a dainty lace-trimmed apron, and so gracious was she to Mirella's morning caller that he accepted her invitation to dinner.

Mirella, darkly beautiful as ever, was conscious of a strange singing happiness in her heart. The whole world looked fair and lovely and the future was a rainbow-tinted dream. Hats and red roses were relegated to the background.

The following week the whole Hastings family motored down from New York to see Mirella Elwood and her aunt. Harry, looking gaunt and pale, smiled radiantly upon Mirella and when Aunt Keziah heard him play on the violin which Mirella brought forth the old lady declared that never before had she heard real music. After that Aunt Keziah Elwood never referred again to a "fiddle." As Harry mischievously expressed it "Aunt Keziah spells violin with a capital V, and I'm responsible for it."

It was the episode of the violin also, that made him the gratified brother-in-law of pretty Mirella Elwood.

AN ABLE CHAMPION, A JUST CRITIC

Abroad Mr. Wilson has already been referred to as "the first citizen of the world." One day a history of what the world is now passing through will determine the accuracy of this estimate. That we have as our spokesman a man who can put American ideals into words in a crisis such as this, without giving ground an inch on propositions of American rights; who can take the way of honor and courage without loss of dignity and self-control; who can feel and understand the pressure of group-indignation without losing sight of world-responsibility—in this all nations have been and are fortunate to a degree that can be measured only in the future.—Harper's Weekly.

We do not regard the above as an exaggerated estimation of the skill and nobility of spirit with which the president has handled our delicate foreign relations, but we reproduce it for another reason than to repeat a tribute so generally paid the "school master." The reason is that our readers may read that which follows—Harper's comment upon Mr. Bryan—in the light of its estimate of Mr. Wilson, which appeared on the same page of the Weekly:

The hurricane of newspaper abuse that marked the voluntary passage of Mr. Bryan from the office of secretary of state was not as significant as it appeared on the surface. Somehow the American reading public appreciated this. Words such as "traitor" and "treason" were recognized as the froth on the lips of an over-strained journalism, a symptom of editorial hysteria. The deep surge of public anger, so quick to be sensed, was lacking. Some laughed. Most were conscious of that feeling of admiration, that something akin to compassion and awe that is aroused by a display of courage, even if misguided, in the face of disappointment, attack and ridicule.

It was to be expected that the conservative press would ascribe selfish and sinister motives to Mr. Bryan, for he is one whose ruin has long been desired. It was somewhat of a surprise to find journalistic supporters of honesty and cleanliness in government swept along into joining the hue and cry.

The attempt to make it appear that Mr. Bryan's resignation sprang from no finer inspiration that a passion for office was stupid in its malignance. When he gave himself wholeheartedly to the Wilson cause at Baltimore and again when he accepted a post in the Wilson cabinet, Mr. Bryan gave notice of voluntary renunciation of presidential aspirations. His resignation itself was proof of his relinquishment of personal ambition. Should ever it be proven that his course was guided by any motive other than high idealism unstained by personal consideration, he would be damned as a traitor through all history. Nothing so definitely bars him from a presidential candidacy as his surrender of high position at a critical moment in national affairs.

Mr. Bryan acted out of impersonal devotion to the non-political ideal that has him in its grip. There is no doubt that he will make this abundantly clear as time dissipates the haze of prejudice. More and more has Mr. Bryan become the evangelist and less and less the politician. It is as the exhorter that he now stands before the people. He is too great and too powerful a man to be summarily dismissed by a newspaper paragrapher.

We feel like thanking Norman Hapgood, editor of Harper's, for this just treatment of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Hapgood fully agreed with the president's course, completely disagreed with Mr. Bryan's notion of what was proper with relation to the German situation. But he interpreted Mr. Bryan with intelligence and justice and treated him with courtesy and consideration. It is a fine contrast with the intemperate and often malicious language with which most editors seized another chance to "put Mr. Bryan out of business." Of course what Mr. Hapgood said and what other editors said can not alter anything so irresistible as the influence of Mr. Bryan. He may not be, may never be a statesman, never a president. But a teacher he is and will be, and for his teaching America is a better country and the world will be a better world. We are glad that the editor of an influential magazine protests against the practice—it has become a newspaper habit—of attempting to besmirch one of the most wholesome and inspiring figures in American history by imputing the meanest of motives to his noblest conduct. Bryan may have reasoned wrongly, but reasoning as he did, his action was consistent, honorable, brave. As Bryan admires Wilson, Wilson admires Bryan. They have measured each the other's motives, and they know. The breadth and generosity which marked their treatment of each other in a crisis of supreme importance to both should shame the pens of slander and abuse.

CONDUCTORS SHOULD CALL THE STREETS

It depends on the conductor.

Some do, some don't.

No doubt all have orders to, but nevertheless, some don't.

If you see a car filled with people who, especially if it be evening, ride with their faces flattened against the window panes, the conductor "don't." The poor people do not ride so for amusement. They are compelled to ride like that in order that they may know when they reach their destinations. And it is all because the conductor don't.

Don't what?

Well, some do, and they shouldn't suffer, and we don't want to tell on even those who don't, but if our good friend Peter will post an order imperatively directing ALL conductors to DISTINCTLY call the names of ALL streets as the cars approach them, there won't be anybody to tell on.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Hunger

The starving men they walk the dusk,
With hunger in their eyes;
To them a lighted house is like
A lamp of paradise.

It is the window in the dusk
That marks the drifter's coast;
It is the thought of love and light
That mocks the drifter most.

Now I have been a starving man
And walked the winter dusk,
And I have known how life may be
A heaven and a husk.

The fainting hands, they pulled my sleeve,
And bade me curse the light,
But I had seen a rich man's face
That looked into the night—

A hungry face, a brother face,
That stared into the gloom,
And starved for light and starved for love
Within a lighted room'
—Dana Burnet in Harper's Magazine.

'Tis the King's English

A city man recently visited his "country cousin." The man from the city, wishing to explain the joys of metropolitan life, said: "We certainly have been having fun the last few days Thursday we autoed to the country club and golfed until dark, then trolleyed back to town and danced until morning."

The country cousin was not to be stumped in the least, and began telling of some of the pleasures of the simple life: "We have had pretty good times here too. One day we buggied out to Uncle Ned's and went out to the back lot, where we baseballed all the afternoon. In the evening we sneaked up into the attic and pokered until morning."

A sturdy old farmer, who was listening, not to be outdone, took up the conversation at this point and said: "I was having some fun about this time myself. I muled out to the cornfield and geehawed until sundown. Then I suppered until dark and piped until 9 o'clock, after which I bedsteaded until the clock fived, after which I breakfasted until it was time to go muling again."

Sure Some Swell

The curtain descended slowly. Hamlet had died a beautiful death and was being carried out shoulder high and by his loyal friends. The audience sat with bated breath, so impressed with the solemnity of the occasion. Not a whisper was heard and the silence was so intense you could hear the beating of your own heart. All at once a shrill whisper was heard distinctly, "My, ain't that just swell!"

Pat Hardest Hit

An Irishman tried to shoot a sparrow with a very old musket. He fired. The bird with a chirp or two, flew away unconcerned in the foreground, and Pat was swiftly laid on his back. Picking himself up and shaking his fist at the bird, he exclaimed: "Be jabbers, ye wouldn't 'a chirruped if ye'd been at this ind of the gun."

Envious

"What's the matter, Alice?" asked her mother as the little girl came home crying as if her heart would break.

"Mabel Jones has got adenoids and I never have anything," sobbed Alice.

Yes, Indeed!

"I'm afraid Jones is living beyond his income."

"No, he isn't, but his creditors will be if they figure on getting what he owes them."

Proof

At a political convention not long ago, two rival delegates got into a serious personal dispute.

"Oh, you're crazy!" shouted one.

"I'm not crazy!" vociferated the first.

"I can prove I'm not crazy, and that's more than you can do," came back the rejoinder.

"Let's see you prove it, then."

Whereupon the man who was accused of being crazy pulled from an inside pocket his discharge papers from a nearby asylum.

NO LOOKING BACK IN LA CROSSE

New Evidence Constantly Being Published

Since the long succession of La Crosse reports were first published in the local press there has been no looking back. La Crosse evidence continues to pour in, and—better still—those whose reports were first published many years ago, verify all they said in a most hearty and unmistakable way. Read the experience of Mrs. H. Hermanson, 1125 S. Third St. She says:

"I had dizzy and nervous spells and my kidneys were weak. My back ached intensely. I used different remedies, but nothing helped me until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. I was soon rid of the pain and other kidney ailments. Another of my family has used Doan's Kidney Pills for a weak back and kidneys and has been cured. The endorsement I have given Doan's Kidney Pills before, holds good. Whenever I have the least sign of disordered kidneys, I take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills and they fix me up all right."

LOVE INSURANCE

A COMEDY ROMANCE

By Earl Derr Biggers

Author of Seven Keys To Baldpate.

Copyrighted The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

The native descended to the dust and slid under the car. In a moment he emerged, triumphant.

"All O. K.," he announced. "Don't you worry, lady. It's San Marco or bust."

"If only something doesn't bust," Minot said.

Again they were plowing through the sand. The girl sat anxiously on the edge of the seat, her cheeks flaming, her eyes alight. Minot watched her. And suddenly all the happy, sad little memories melted into a golden glow—the glow of being alive—on this lonesome road—with her! Then suddenly he knew! This was the one girl, the girl of all the world, the girl he should love while the memory of her lasted, which would be until the eyes that looked upon her now were dust. A great exultation swept through him—

"What did you mean," he asked, "when you said you were always doing things like this?"

"I mean," she answered, "that I'm a silly little fool. Oh, if you could know me well—" and her eyes seemed to question the future—"you'd see for yourself. Never looking ahead to calculate the consequences. It's the old story of fools rushing in—"

"You mean of angels rushing in, don't you? I never was good at old saws, but—"

"And once more, please—your watch?"

"Twenty minutes of one."

"Oh, dear—canwe—"

A wild whoop from the driver interrupted.

"San Marco," he cried, pointing to where red towers rose above the green of the country. "It paid to take a chance with me. I sure did let her out. Where do you want to go, lady?"

"The Hotel de la Pax," said the girl, and with a sigh of deep relief, sank back upon the cushions.

"And Salvator won," quoted Mr. Minot with a laugh.

"How can I ever thank you?" the girl asked.

"Don't try," said Minot. "That is—I mean—try, if you will, please."

"It meant so very much to me—"

"No—you'd better not, after all. It makes me feel guilty. For I did nothing that doesn't come under the head of glorious privilege. A chance to serve you! Why, I'd travel to the ends of the earth for that."

"But—it was good of you. You can hardly realize all it meant to me to reach this hotel by one o'clock. Perhaps I ought to tell you—"

"It doesn't matter," Minot replied. "That you have reached here is my reward." His cheeks burned; his heart sang. Here was the one girl, and he built castles in Spain with lightening strokes. She should be his. She must be. Before him life stretched, glorious, with her at his side—

"I think I will tell you," the girl was saying. "This is to be the most important luncheon of my life because—"

"Yes?" smiled Mr. Minot.

"Because it is the one at which I am going to announce my engagement!"

Minot's heart stopped beating. A hundred castles in Spain came tumbling about his ears, and the roar of their falling deafened him. He put out his hand blindly to open the door, for he realized that the car had come to a stop.

"Let me help you, please," he said dully.

And even as he spoke a horrible possibility swept into his heart and overwhelmed him.

"I—I beg your pardon," he stammered, "but would you mind telling me one thing?"

"Of course not. But I really must fly—"

"The name of—the happy man."

"Why—Allan, Lord Harrowby. Thank you so much—and good-by."

She was gone now—gone amid the palms of that gorgeous hotel courtyard. And out of the roar that enveloped him Minot heard a voice:

"Thirty-five dollars, mister."

So promptly did he pay this grievous overcharge that the chauffeur asked hopefully:

"Now could I take you anywhere, sir?"

"Yes," said Minot bitterly. "Take me back to New York."

"Well—if I had a new front tire I might try it."

Two eager black boys were moving inside with Minot's bags, and he followed. As he passed the fountain tinkling gaily in the courtyard:

"What was it I promised Thacker?" he said to himself. "'Miss Cynthia Meyrick changes her mind only over my dead body.' Ah, well—the good die young."

CHAPTER IV.

Mr. Trimmer Limbers Up.

At the desk of the De la Pax Mr. Minot learned that for fifteen dollars a day he might board and lodge amid the splendors of that hotel. Gracefully he signed his name. One of the negro boys—who had matched coins for him with the other boy while he registered—led the way to his room.

It proved a long and devious journey. The Hotel de la Pax was a series of afterthoughts on the part of its builders. Up hill and down dale the boy led, through dark passageways, over narrow bridges, until at length they arrived at the door of 389.

"My boy," muttered Minot feelingly, "I congratulate you. Henry M. Stanley in the flower of his youth couldn't have done any better."

"Yes, sah." The boy drew open the door of a narrow cell, at the farther end of which a solitary window admitted the well-known Florida sunshine. Minot stepped over and glanced out. Where the gay courtyard with its green palms waving, its fountain tinkling? Not visible from 389. Instead Minot saw a narrow street, its ancient cobblestones partly obscured by flourishing grass, and bordered by quaint, top-heavy Spanish houses, their plaster walls a hundred colors from the indignities of the years.

"We seem to have strayed over into Spain," he remarked.

The bell-boy giggled.

"Yes, sah. We one block and a half from the hotel office."

"I didn't notice any taxis in the corridors," smiled Minot. "Here—wait a minute." He tossed the boy a coin. "Your fare back home. If you get stranded on the way, telegraph."

The boy departed, and Minot continued to gaze out. Directly across from his window, looking strangely out of place in that dead and buried street, stood a great stone house that bore on its front the sign "Manhattan Club and Grill." On the veranda, flush with the sidewalk and barely fifteen fet away, a huge red-faced man sat deep in slumber.

Many and strange pursuits had claimed the talents of old Tom Stacy, manager of the Manhattan Club, ere his advent in San Marco. A too active district attorney had forced the New York police to take a keen interest in his life and works, hence Mr. Stacy's presence on that Florida porch. But such troubles were forgot for the moment. He slumbered peacefully, secure in the knowledge that the real business of the club would not require his attention until darkness fell. His great head fell gradually farther in the direction of his generous waist, and while there is no authentic evidence to offer, it is safe to assume that he dreamed of Broadway.

APPLAUSE GREETS DRILL TEAM FROM MILWAUKEE AERIE

North Side Enthusiastic Over Work of Crack Corps of the Eagles

BIG CROWD WATCHES ITS WORK

Eagles Are Welcomed to the North Side in Speech by District Attorney Schlabach

Interest among the Eagles of La Crosse, and especially of the north side, was focussed last night on Copeland park, where for an hour Capt. A. J. Kluppak and his drill team from Milwaukee aerie No. 137 put on what was probably the best work of its kind ever seen in La Crosse. The "best fraternal drill team" in the state, as the team was characterized by L. B. Omerberg in the preliminary addresses at the park, lived up to its advance reputation. The park was black with people.

Repeated applause was given the men throughout the drill. Many were the difficult formations which the team went through, all like clockwork and with no other guiding signal than a whistle from the leader. Numerous cartwheel formations were executed and the exhibition ended with a straight line revolving formation, with Capt. Kluppak as pivot. The round was loudly applauded.

The team worked to music furnished by the Brunkhorst band of Milwaukee, which accompanied the Milwaukee delegation to the convention.

Prof. Bridgham and his north side band greeted the drill team, the Brunkhorst band and a marching body of delegates as they detrained from street cars at the Milwaukee crossing. Taking a course up Mill street, the procession turned east on St. Cloud street to Rose street, and north to Wall street and then west into the park. Hundreds of people followed the parade, and at the park a crowd estimated at two thousand was assembled to witness the work of the drill team.

Louis Omerberg in a few words introduced the Brunkhorst band and the drill team. He was followed by Otto Schlabach, district attorney and a resident of the north side, who welcomed the body to the north side.

"Although I have not the honor of belonging to your order," the speaker said, "I am in fullest sympathy with the ideals and the purposes of the order, that of fraternalism. In an order of four hundred thousand strong there must be good."

THE GOOD JUDGE OVERHEARS A CHAT BETWEEN FRIENDS.

TRUST a tobacco lover to tell his friends as soon as he has become acquainted with the Real Tobacco Chew. Not only real tobacco, but the best of real tobacco. A little chew lasts a long time—it's chuck full of the good tobacco taste.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

VIADUCT IN USE SUNDAY IS PLAN

Rose Street Bridge Expected to Be Ready for Cars Late in the Week

The visit of the Eagles to the North side last night might well have been considered a dedication of the new Rose street viaduct. Although the party did not pass over the bridge, it passed through the north end of the Rose street approach in plain sight of the viaduct.

Plans of the street railway company are that street cars will be running over the viaduct by Sunday and possibly Saturday. The junction to the tracks leading over the bridge are being made at Rose and St. Cloud streets and the connection at Mill and Monitor streets is ready for completion.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

NEW YORK, June 24.—The fall of Lemberg practically concludes the German operations in Galicia. The Russians must now fall back on their own border, while the Austro-Hungarian province which was to be annexed to the czar's empire after the war, is returned to its former possessors. The series of defeats the Russians have suffered since the German drive began eight weeks ago are among the most damaging of the war, not only because they take from the Slavs their only conquered territory, but also because they reveal both a moral and military disintegration in the Russian army.

FAIL TO OUT-WALK MANN ACT AND GO TO LEAVENWORTH

Beloit Man of Family Lands in Prison Because of 17 Year Old Girl

MADISON, Wis., June 24.—Leon Lighthart of Beloit, Wis., was sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge A. L. Sanborn here for violating the Mann act. He was accused of inducing 17-year-old Ruth Johnson of Beloit to accompany him across the state line into Illinois. The girl upon being brought back was sent to the industrial school for girls at Milwaukee. Lighthart is married and has two children. The Johnson girl insists she will marry Lighthart when he is released. A peculiar feature of the case is that they sought to evade prosecution under the Mann act by walking from Beloit into Illinois. Transportation of a woman, however, does not constitute the only offense under this law, inducement and abetting being equally serious.

TUBERCULIN TEST IS NOT UPHELD

Poole Bill Is Recommended for Passage by Senate Committee with Amendment

MADISON, Wis., June 24.—(Special.)—The old question of the relative merits of pasteurization versus the tuberculin test as a means of regulating the milk supply of municipalities was again thrashed out before the senate state affairs committee on Wednesday. At the close of a long hearing the committee reported the Poole bill, with the Bichler amendment, favorably by a unanimous vote, virtually holding that pasteurization is sufficient as a protection to the public against tubercular germs in milk.

The Bichler amendment provides that cities can require the tuberculin test only when milk sold is not pasteurized.

NO NEED NOW OF OIL INSPECTION

MADISON, Wis., June 24.—That there is no further reason for continuing the office of state oil inspector and deputies was the contention of Chaster D. Barnes of Kenosha, before the committee on finance of the legislature yesterday afternoon. He said when gasoline was cheap a number of years ago it was possible to adulterate kerosene, but now that the latter has become more expensive there was no more reason for inspecting oils beyond that of food products. Only two barrels of oil had been rejected in the past year, he said. Thomas J. Mahon, for independent oil interests, opposed the bill, declaring it was in favor of the Standard Oil company. If the present inspection system is to be discontinued, he said, lives of Wisconsin citizens will be sacrificed. State Oil Inspector Meyer also opposed the bill.

HOLD CITY-OWNED UTILITES TO LAW DEMANDING REPORT

KILL SUNDAY THEATER BILL

By One Vote Measure to Legalize Baseball and Theaters on Sunday Fails of Passage in Senate

What The Senate Did Yesterday

(1) Refused to except municipally owned utilities from law compelling utilities to make reports to rail commission.

(2) Killed the bill legalizing Sunday theaters and baseball.

(3) Refused to reconsider defeat of one-day-rest-in-seven bill.

(4) Refused to hold night session on the Public Welfare bill.

MADISON, Wis., June 24.—In the senate late yesterday afternoon, the Greil bill to remove the requirement that municipally owned utilities in villages and small cities shall report to the railroad commission and be controlled by that body was nonconcurred in by a vote of 20 to 12. The vote:

Prior to this vote the senate adopted Senator Bennett's amendment providing that such cities need make reports only upon an order of the commission following complaints from such cities. This somewhat tempered the bill.

Kill Heim Bill

The senate by a vote of 16 to 17, with Lieutenant Governor Dithmar breaking a tie vote, killed a bill by AssemblymanHeim which would have legalized theatrical productions, moving picture shows, baseball and golf games on Sunday. Senator Tomkins' amendment allowing cities or towns to make their own regulations on the subject was first adopted, 16 to 14.

The vote by which the bill was nonconcurred in follows:

For the bill—Senators Ackley, Arnold, Barwig, Baxter, Bichler, Bosshard, Burke, Cunningham, Hanson, Kellogg, Martin, Mulberger, Richards, Staudenmayer, Tomkins, Weissleder—16.

One Day Rest Bill Dead

The senate by a vote of 15 of 17 refused to reconsider the vote by which it non-concurred in the Budlong bill requiring railroad companies to give their station agents and telegraphers one day's rest in seven, or double pay for Sunday work.

Senator Bosshard attacked the Greil bill on municipal utilities, saying there is no substantial complaint against the law, that the legislature should not encroach upon it even in "mild and diluted form," that few cities are complaining about reporting to the commission, and that the railroad commission itself was not in favor of the change. Senator Bray said the bill was strong in principle and that small utilities need this supervision. The members of the commission were opposed to the change, he said, as a breaking down of the utility law. Chairman Jackson especially, he said, he knew was against it. Senator Skogmo testified to the same effect.

Senator Bennett kept the senate in session long after the dinner hour with an extended speech for the bill. He read letters favoring the bill from mayors of South Milwaukee, Richland Center, Stoughton, Loyal, Manitowoc, Platteville, Reedsburg, Elroy, Middleton and other cities.

"It is none of the state's business how these small utilities are run," he said, "so long as no one makes complaint So why all these complex reports? They are useless and nonsensical, and actually wasteful of state money, requiring extra clerks to handle them."

Bennet Answers Bosshard

After the bill was killed, Senator Bennett continued his defense of it by arguing on Senator Bosshard's motion to reconsider, by which the latter hoped to prevent its revival for the session. This is scheduled to come up for a vote today.

The senate debated for a half hour at the afternoon session on the agricultural consolidation bill but without coming to a vote on the bill itself. This went over until today, being made a special order for 10 a. m. The senate adopted an amendment bringing the state entomologist under the merger, another increasing the proposed board's appropriation from $30,000 to $40,000, and a third continuing the civil service status of employes now with the boards to be consolidated. It was said on the sidelines that the senate stood evenly divided on the bill, thus giving the lieutenant governor the deciding vote, and that he would vote in opposition, thus killing the bill. Senator Whitman has been paired with Senator Scott, who lies ill in the hospital. This reduces the administration's effective vote by one. There was much speculation over the ability of the administration leaders to change this status by the time the bill came up for a final vote today.

The senate refused to hold a night session, adjourning until 9 this morning. Among the bills on last night's calendar was the joint investigating committee's bill consolidating several departments into a board of public welfare. This is on with a recommendation by the finance committee for non-concurrence.

Call of the House

The reconsideration of the tax commission bill in the assembly tied the assembly up in a call of the house in the evening, as had been expected. A desperate effort has been made on the part of administration followers to get a reconsideration so that amendments might be offered to the bill with the hope of saving it. The opponents of the measure do not propose to have a vote taken without having every man in his seat.

SCRUBWOMEN GO ON WAGE STRIKE

CLEVELAND, O., June 24.—One scrubwoman, who refused to join the scrubwomen's strike here, was beaten, and others were chased and heckled yesterday until police reserves restored order in down-town office buildings.

Cleveland's largest office buildings presented the strange scene of being picketed by the women who formerly kept them spick and span.

The 150 strikers have vowed vengeance on more than a score of men who have taken their places.

The women demand a wage of $1.50 a day, a twenty cent boost. Building managers offer $1.35.

CARNEGIE HOME THREATENED BY BOMB ARTISTS

NEW YORK, June 24—The police department today discredited the theory that the bomb placed in the gateway of Andrew Carnegie's palatial Fifth avenue residence last night was the work of anarchists or I. W. W. sympathizers. The structure and methods used, they said, were so crude they showed plainly it was the work of amateurs.

LETTER TELLS OF PANGS OF FAMINE IN AUSTRIAN CITY

Prominent La Crosse Business Man Receives Pitiful Appeal from Relatives for Flour

HER HAIR HAS TURNED GRAY

Writer Tells of Crying Children and Moaning Women in One of War-ridden Lands

A letter describing the pangs of starvation, and making a pitiful appeal for "a little flour," has come to one of the most widely known business men of La Crosse, from relatives in Austria. The names are withheld because it is feared that the writer might be embarrassed were the identity of herself and family sent back to the Austrian authorities as authors of a letter that undoubtedly escaped censorship.

The letter, a story of starving children and moaning women, of a foodless city and a woman turned gray in the twenties, follows:

"Dear Uncle and Aunt:

"Many thanks for your last card. Would have written before this, but there is nothing to write about but misery. There is little work to be had, and this is poorly paid. Here are some of the prevailing prices of food stuffs:

"Meat, 45c per pound.
"Flour, 10c per pound.
"Lard, 60c per pound.
"Potatoes, 2½c per pound.
"Butter, 45c per pound.
"Dice, 16c per pound.

"Some cereals are not to be had at all. A common pair of men's shoes costs $6.

"No one can imagine the hardships this war has brought upon us and you would hardly believe what tortures we and the children are enduring on account of not having not enough to eat. I am glad my poor mother is dead, so she does not witness our absolute misery. All men from eighteen to fifty years of are are claimed for the army now, and I fear that my husband will yet have to go.

"Think of a poor woman with six or seven children, whose husband has been killed on the battlefield, and who is unable to supply the necessary eatables of any kind for her young ones. When I step out on the street I hear nothing but the crying of hungry children and the moaning of despairing women. Oh, how one wishes for death!

"This week 60,000 captured Russians were brought here and this again raises the prices of foodstuffs, for they have to be fed. My husband and I are living principally on a bowl of soup a day. Meat we have not seen for seven weeks. The most terrible thing of all is to see all the starving children without being able to minister to their wants. I wonder if there would be no way that you, my dear uncle and aunt, could send me a little flour from America.

"We are having very dry weather and hope ardently for some rain. All nature seems to be starving with us. I am twenty-nine years old, and my hair is grayer than my mother's was when she died."

MANY KILLED IN AIRSHIP RAIDS

LONDON, June 24.—Fifty-six persons have been killed and 138 injured in fourteen air raids on English towns since the beginning of the war, under Home Secretary Brace stated today in the house of commons. The attacks were chiefly on undefended towns, he said.

SEAMEN'S UNION PRESIDENT ARGUES FOR SEAMEN'S BILL

Furuseth in Washington to Plan Fight Against Modification of La Follette Bill

BY LOWELL MELLETT
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 24.—If President Wilson is being persuaded, as reports have it, that American shipping is due to disappear from the sea when the La Follette seamen's act goes into effect, November 4, it is the result of misinformation, according to President Andrew Furuseth of the International Seamen's union, who, with Vice President Patrick J. Flynn, is in Washington to plan a fight against the act's modification or repeal by the next congress.

Furuseth declared today that the story that the Pacific Mail line is going out of business is untrue.

"The Southern Pacific railroad owns the controlling interest in the Pacific Mail," he said, "and consequently its steamers are not permitter to go through the Panama canal. There is every evidence to prove that the Pacific Mail is simply reorganizing, so as to divest the Southern Pacific of its ownership and readjusting its trade route to make it extend from Hong Kong through the canal to New York.

"The Union Iron works has furnished, on request of the Pacific Mail, specifications for charging the latter's steamers to oil burners. To make the change will require two months. The Mongolia is included."

Furuseth argued that after the change has been made the Mongolia will be operated for less than before, even with a white crew, as compelled by the new law.

"Instead of carrying 115 Chinese firemen," he said, "the boat can operate with eighteen white men in the hole. They pay the Chinese $9 a month. White men will be paid $55. Where it has cost $1,035 in wages for Chinese, it will cost $990 for the white men. To feed the 115 Chinese at 18 cents a day each has cost $621 a month, as against $216 for the eighteen white men at forty cents a day.

"It will cost the Pacific Mail more in its deck crew, however. The deck crew of forty Chinese could be cut to twenty-four white men. The difference between $8 a month for Chinese and $50 for white men would make the increase in wages amount to $888 and food would be $62 more on the month."

fact no member of the La Crosse aerie had ever appealed for any state position. Cheer after cheer went up after his address, and Dittman's election was almost unanimous.

The business session today marked the close of the work of the convention.

Members partook of a hasty luncheon and the majority of them embarked on the Sidney for an excursion up river.

The biggest steamboat excursion of the week is expected at 8 o'clock tonight, when the public is invited to participate with the visiting and La Crosse Eagles in the closing event of the convention week.

MINIATURE CYCLONE DOES MUCH DAMAGE

BRAINERD, Minn., June 24.—Bpzzing like a monster road engine, a cyclone struck the home of Ole J. Olson in southeast Brainerd, jarred the house, tore his summer kitchen to pieces, leveled trees, damaged two other sheds nearby and following a creek, traveled southeast out of the city. Lightning struck the barn of Martin Anderson near Sylvan, first station west of Brainerd, killed four cows and destroyed the buildings, as a part of the storm which twisted over Brainerd.

SCORE OF "DIPS" ARRESTED BEFORE THEY GET TO WORK

Notorious Pickpockets Are Picked Up by the Police and Ordered Out of Town

FOUR ARE HELD FOR TRAIN JOB

Local Authorities Are Aided by Outside Detectives; Only One Petty Crime Reported

A score of crooks, among them men notorious as pickpockets all over the country, have been picked up by the local police this week. Most of them have been ordered out of town, but four men arrested last night in Riverside park, are being held to answer for the disappearance of $75 from the person of a passenger on a train between Minneapolis and La Crosse late yesterday.

Have Outside Detectives

In order to protect the city's guests from depredations of pickpockets and stick-up men, who frequently foregather to prey upon big gatherings, the police department is employing a number of plain-clothesmen from outside. Among them are L. J. Benson, Omaha; William Scholl, Milwaukee; John Doherty, Minneapolis, and Charles Fairweather, Chicago. Other detectives, employed by railroads, are also working with the department.

This has been done at all large meetings in La Crosse, and to some extent upon circus days. Thus far there has been but one petty crime.

The four men arrested last night gave the names of Joseph McCauley, C. V. Price, R. J. Murphy and William Taylor. According to the police they answer perfectly to a description furnished by the conductor of a Milwaukee road train who reported that one of his passengers had been robbed of a large roll between Minneapolis and La Crosse. He suspected a quartet whose descriptions he gave the police. The four were arrested in Riverside park last night on the outskirts of the crowd that had gathered to watch the departure of the steamer Sidney.

WITH THE EAGLE'S QUILL

Today's Program

10 a. m.—Business session state aerie.

2 p. m.—Nomination and election of state officers.

Selection of time and place of next state convention.

Miscellaneous business.

Adjournment.

La Crosse will not be without its live eagle, despite the fact that Antigo Dick, the property of the state Order of Eagles, goes to the city landing the state convention in 1916. Eagle No. 2 belongs to Otto Granke, North La Crosse butcher. The bird was presented to Mr. Granke by friends at Ettrick, Wis., where he was found. It is thought that the bird, which is three weeks old, fell from its nest. Mr. Granke has not decided what he will do with the young bird.

Prizes for the best decorated Eagles' windows were awarded last night to the William Doerflinger company, Miss A. Lennon and Ferdinand Roth, on the north side. The awards were made by a committee composed of State President Armstrong, State Vice President Charles W. Hathaway, and State Secretary John C. Nichols.

He's here. Thomas J. Cogan, past grand worthy president of the national aerie, F. O. E., who was scheduled to respond to the address of welcome Monday evening, arrived in town this morning. Late trains and business delayed him. He spoke to the state aerie this morning after his arrival. Mr. Cogan's home is in Cincinnati.

Parade prizes were awarded yesterday by a committee composed of Mayor A. A. Bentley, John A. Elliott and Joseph Boschert. The committee decided that the first prize belonged to Milwaukee, second to Marshfield, third to Racine, fourth to Wausau, fifth to Reedsburg and sixth to Janesville.

By winning the ritual exemplification yesterday, Wausau's drill team made the first leg in a contest for the cup offered by the state aerie. They will hold the cup for a year, and will become its permanent possessors provided they can win it again next year.

CROWD RUMORED ON WAY TO JAIL TO LYNCH FRANK

ATLANTA, Ga., June 24.—The rumor that a crowd was going to Milledgeville to lynch Frank gained periodical circulation, but was not taken seriously. For a mob to carry the strong prison buildings with their armed guard was said by persons familiar with the situation there to be out of the question, even if attempted, which was regarded as to altogether unlikely.

German War Office Reports Continued Successes Against Russians Near Stanislau

BERLIN, via Wireless to London, June 24.—Gen. von Linsingin's army has crossed the Dniester between Halioz (north of Stanislau) and Zuravno (east of Stryj.)

The Russians were defeated and thrown back across the river in a fierce battle, the war office announced this afternoon. Von Linsingin is pressing forward in an effort to cut the lines of communication between the Russian army that retreated from Lemberg and the forces operating around Stanislau.

EVIDENCE ABOUT PLOT TO KIDNAP THAW ADDUCED

Stanchfield Opens Testimony Concerning Plot to Take Thaw Across the Border

JUSTICE ADMITS TESTIMONY

Defense Scores Victory when Attempt of Prosecution to Hold Out Testimony Is Overruled

NEW YORK, June 24.—The United Press today asked Dr. Austin Flint, world famous alienist, to explain just what constitutes paranoia, the disease which the state contends Harry Thaw is suffering from. Here it is:

Paranoia is a chronic progressive psychosis occurring mostly in early adult life, characterized by the general development of a stable progressive system of delusions without marked mental deterioration, clouding of consciousness or disorder of thought, will or conduct.

Recovery I have never seen in the observation of more than a thousand cases.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Sensational revelations about the alleged plot to kidnap Harry K. Thaw by New York state officials, headed by William Travers Jerome, when the slayer of Stanford White was a fugitive in Canada, were promised by John B. Stanchfield at the Thaw sanity trial today.

In fighting for certain testimony of the Canadian witnesses, Thaw's chief counsel said their statements would be sustained by evidence which he later would divulge.

Despite Assistant Attorney General Cook's strenuous objections, Justice Hendrick allowed the testimony to be admitted. Robert A. Ewing, Sherbrooke, Canada, alderman, was allowed to tell of the stories he had heard about the alleged kidnapping plot.

"When I went into court the first morning that Thaw was arraigned," Ewing said, "I saw many strange men. As I passed inside the court I heard one of the strangers say to his companion: 'The best way for us to get him is to snap him up and rush him across the line.'"

Nothing developed from Ewing's testimony that showed how Thaw's attorneys hope to strengthen his plea of sanity by testimony concerning the supposed kidnaping plot. None of the Thaw lawyers would make any explanation.

The court recessed for luncheon when Ewing was excused.

Legal broadsides and technical flank movements, with brilliant verbal maneuvering, are characterizing both sides of the famous case. John B. Stanchfield, New York's mightiest criminal defender, has found a worthy opponent in Frank K. Cook, a young up-state lawyer, who occupies the position of deputy attorney general.

From the early events in the trial today it became evident that Cook is reserving his heaviest attack on the Thaw defense, and that he is now legally sane until the state calls the slayer of Stanford White as its own witness. When he puts Thaw on the witness stand he plans a thorough searching of Thaw's mental capacities and of his conduct from the time he left Pittsburg a young man for Harvard and his subsequent acts while he was the "Angel of Broadway."

May Charge Hereditary Insanity

Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw may be unwillingly a factor in keeping her son from gaining his liberty.

Deputy Attorney General Cook announced today that he would read to the jury the testimony of Mrs. Thaw, given at the second trial, in which she admitted that Thaw and his family before them had suffered from mental disorders. Cook plans to use this testimony as a boomerang, showing that Thaw is affected by hereditary insanity.

If the court will not allow this to be read into the records, Cook said he would be forced to call Mrs. Thaw to the stand.

Reporter Testifies

Gustave Roeder, a New York World reporter, stated on cross examination today that he interviewed Thaw two days after he had killed White and at that time Thaw appeared irrational.

William L. Shurtleff, a Coaticook, Quebec, attorney, who represented Thaw on his arrival in Canada, said he considered Thaw sane.

James E. Smith, a newspaper man of Sherbrook, Canada, was next put on the stand. Thaw was sane, he thought.

"Did Thaw ever discuss women with you?" asked Cook.

"Yes," admitted the witness.

'Virgins? Canadian or otherwise?" pressed Cook.

"No," snapped Smith. "The right kind—mothers."

Considers Thaw Sane

Andrew Rouseau, a Coaticook, Canada, hotel keeper, who went the bond of William Travers Jerome when the latter was arrested there for playing penny-ante poker, said he always considered Thaw sane. He said he had a good chance to observe him, taking him his meals and conversing with him.

Robert A. Ewing, an alderman of Sherbrooke, Canada, followed Rousseau. Attorney Stanchfield brought out that Ewing thought so much of Thaw that he asked him to stay in Canada and enter business there. This aroused Cook's ire.

U. S. AWAITS IN CONFIDENCE FOR NEXT GERMAN NOTE

All Available Information Points to Friendly Response with Right of Travel Respected

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The United States waits in confidence for the next German note. It is admitted in official circles that it will not reach here before July 7, the day that President Wilson will return from the summer capital in Cornish. There has been no arrangement to this effect, but German Ambassador von Bernstorff has intimated to Berlin that under the circumstances the delay will be appreciated by the administration.

All available information points to an amicable response. It is deemed likely that it will seek to debate some of the questions raised by the United States, but on the general suggestions it is admitted in official quarters that Ambassador Gerard has been assured by the chief officials in Berlin that Germany hopes her answer will be acceptable here.

Germany, it is positively known, will agree that American citizens can go as they please through the submarine war zone.

The president has asked Secretary Lansing to keep him informed concerning all developments. He has agreed that the new note to Great Britain shall be sent forward as soon as all questions in dispute can be framed. It is understood, however, that the contemplated denunciation of a new doctrine of action by this government shall be deferred until after the German reply is available here.

SOCIALISTS LAUNCH CONGRESSCAMPAIGN

"Two Million Votes and Twenty Representatives in Congress in 1916" Is Slogan of Party

CHICAGO, June 24.—"Two million votes and twenty representatives in congress in 1916," was the slogan adopted today by the national socialist party.

In an appeal to every socialist to contribute $2 each to the 1916 campaign fund, it was pointed out today by J. L. Engdahl, editor of the official organ of the party, that since 1908 the socialists have doubled their vote every four years. Engdahl said today that besides the twenty national legislators that will be elected if the expected 2,000,000 votes are cast, there will be 200 state legislators elected on socialist tickets throughout the country.

"Doubling our vote in 1916," said Engdahl, "will mean election of two congressmen from Wisconsin, three from California, two from Oklahoma, two from Minnesota, two from New York, two from Pennsylvania, two from Illinois and one each from Indiana, Ohio, North Dakota, Kansas and Louisiana."

ALLEN USES SYSTEM TO FIND MURDERER

Warden of Joliet Prison to Personally Interrogate Each of the Suspects

JOLIET, Ill., June 24.—Warden Allen of Joliet penitentiary today planned to put his advanced honor system to the supreme test. He will personally ask each of the eleven trusties, who are suspected:

"Did you murder my wife?"

The question is to be put to each man separately. The very opposite of third degree methods will be adopted by Warden Allen when he takes each man separately into his office and appeals to his honor to tell what he knows regardless of consequences. He will point out to the men suspected, that a system meant to benefit their kind is at stake; that so long as the murder of Mrs. Allen Sunday morning remains a mystery opponents of honor systems in jails and penitentiaries will have an argument on the side of re-establishing the hated prison systems of old. The warden planned to point out that even from the brutal murder, great good will come, if the man who killed his wife will confess when appeal is made to his honor and the manhood which Warden Allen's theory takes for granted is there.

Buy It At Home

"I feel the reasons which should impel citizens to patronize home institutions to be so apparent to every one that it seems almost unnecessary to dwell on them," said C. J. Marboe, treasurer of Listman Mill Co.

"It is only by mutual co-operation between the business man who has goods to sell, and the buyer who wishes to purchase, that our city can hope to prosper. If the manufacturers of La Crosse were to go outside of the city for the men and women who operate their factories, they would be doing exactly the same as the buyer who sends his money out of town for the goods which he purchases, or buys foreign-made in preference to La Crosse-made goods.

"A continuation of such practice will mean a reduction in property valuation, which will mean discouragement to prospective outside buyers. It will also mean discouragement and loss of business to local manufacturers, as their best advertisement is the fact that they are liberally supported and patronized in their home city.

"Illustration of the results might be carried along still further, but I do not think it necessary. We have every facility for a splendid, prosperous and growing city if we pull in unison, and I believe that this spirit is becoming more evident in La Crosse than ever before."

COUNTRY SUFFERS BY LAKES RULING

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 24.—Fred D. Underwood, president of the Erie railroad, says the law compelling railroads having steamer lines on the Great Lakes to dispose of them will not seriously affect the railroads, "because they are not making money on their boat lines, anyway."

"But it affects the prosperity of the country generally," he added. "The prosperity of the United States depends on the prosperity of the railroads. There are 1,500,000 persons employed on railroads in this country, and the number of persons depending on each of them averages four. If a railroad is forced to lay off men the blow is felt by everyone from whom these men and their dependents buy goods."

Underwood said the five per cent increase in freight rates given certain railroads recently, "was spent before we got it." He said the roads were unable to sell their bonds. Asked if the Pennsylvania had not sold a number of bonds a short time ago on a favorable basis, he replied:

"The Pennsylvania is an institution. Because of the variety of the products of the district it taps it can get freight when roads which have to depend for their freight on certain products are unable to."

SAYS SMITH SLEW IN COLD BLOOD

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, June 24.—To prove that George Joseph Smith, England's "Modern Bluebeard," in cold blood planned the murder of the first of the three wives he is alleged to have drowned in their baths, the crown this afternoon offered the testimony of Dr. A. J. French, a Hernaday physician.

Dr. French said that Smith on July 12, 1912, summoned him to attend Beatrice Mundy, alleging that she was suffering from a fit. "The prisoner insisted that something was wrong with his wife," said Dr. French. "I examined her, but found her pulse and heart normal, and absolutely no symptoms of a fit. Her only complaint was a slight headache.

"The following morning I was again summoned to the house. I found the young woman dead in a bathtub. The tub was three-fourths full of water. Her head was under the water and her legs extended out over the sides of the tub."

The bathtub at this juncture was brought into court. While the doctor described the position of the body Smith bent forward, cupping his chin with his hand and displaying the liveliest interest.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., June 24.—Captain Joseph Dionne, 60, of the local lifesaving crew, applied today for a pension. He has been a member of the crew 33 years and is the oldest lifesaver on the great lakes in point of service.

You light your fire without kindling; your fuel is delivered in your stove and burns without ashes or soot. You can get a big dinner ready in less than an hour. You can shut off all heat the instant you are through cooking—no waste heat.

The use of your oven on the gas range will permit you to bake bread and apples and cook macaroni and cheese, onions, potatoes and a chicken all at once with one and the same fire.

The housewife owes it to herself and family to minimize her work and thus preserve her health and add to the comfort and happiness of the family.

Ready--The 1916 Hudson

Yacht-Line Body—Ever-Lustre Finish—$200 Less

This new-type Hudson has won a remarkable following. It has brought to all men new ideals of a class car, changing the entire vogue. It has trebled our output, forced immense factory additions, compelled 31 makers to follow our footsteps. Within 20 months, this lightweight Hudson has been adopted by 15,000 motorists.

Now comes another $200 reduction. Now comes the Yacht-Line Body, with new grace, new luxury, new roominess and comfort. Now comes the fulfillment of your dreams—a finish of lasting lustre. Today this favorite class car starts a brilliant new career.

Remember Its History

Two seasons ago this new-type Hudson came out at $1750. Its announcement startled Motordom. Its price was pronounced impossible in a high-grade Six. Its lightness—under 3000 pounds—was scoffed at as incompatible with strength.

But the car was a Hudson, and Hudson standards are high. Howard E. Coffin was its designer, and he stands foremost in his field. He and his whole corps had spent two years in testing and perfecting it. And men were waiting for a class car which would cut down operative cost.

So our first month's output was sold before anyone saw the car. When the car appeared men flocked by thousands to it. And for one whole year thereafter Hudson buyers waited weeks for cars.

Then a $200 Reduction

The next season the price—which seemed so impossible—was reduced to $1550, because of multiplied output. Thirty-one improvements were made in the car, including still lighter weight. Another year's work by our engineering corps showed in its refinement.

This model was soon 4000 cars oversold. We shipped 1000 cars by express. It became at once the largest seling car in the world with a price above $1200.

That changed the whole trend in motor car designing. It became evident to all that the day of overtax was ended. Men would not stand for excess in weight, price, size or operative cost. All cars were built lighter, most prices were reduced. And in 31 factories this new-type Hudson became the pattern car.

Now Comes Graceful Yacht Lines

Now our designers have spent another year on this car. There was no way to improve the chassis. Fifteen thousand cars, covering millions of miles, had failed to develop one fault. Every part and detail had been refined to the limit.

So in this third model they gave their time to the body. They worked out this stately body, with its graceful, sweeping yacht lines.

Every broken line is eliminated. The top-line of the body and the doors is leather bound.

And they created this luxurious tonneau. The sides are higher than before, the rear seat is much wider, so it doesn't crowd three adults. The car seats seven, with all the room that anybody wants. And the extra tonneau seats disappear when not wanted, doubling the tonneau room.

You have never seen a body so impressive and graceful as this Yacht-Line Hudson body.

Now Comes the Ever-Lustre Finish

And now comes for the first time what you have dreamed of—a lustrous finish which stays new. It is the greatest innovation of the year.

In our new factory addition we have built mammoth ovens, with capacity for hundreds of bodies. Now our body finish is baked on in many separate coats. Each coat of finish is now applied under pressure which fixes it as never before. After each coat the body goes to an oven where it is baked for hours, then rubbed. This is done with every coat—an exclusive Hudson process.

The result is a body that stays new. The finish is smooth and brilliant. It resists sun and rain, washing, rubbing, mud. Experienced motorists who have seen bodies grow old and dull will consider this Ever-Lustre finish the most welcome improvement in years.

We combine it with enameled leather upholstery—better than has ever appeared in a car at this price. And with deep, hair-filled cushions, which means enduring luxury as well. This year's new body features mean much added cost. But it means a revolution in finish, in comfort and appearance.

Now Comes the $1350 Price

And now comes another big reduction. We have built additions which will double our capacity. We have worked out countless new ideas in efficiency.

We are building here now, under ideal conditions, more high-grade cars than were ever built in one shop. As a result, we are giving you now the greatest value ever known in a class car.

Last year we reduced this car $200. This year we reduce it $200 more. We are selling this model 23 per cent below its startling initial price—$400 below it. Yet a hundred makers, when they saw the car, pronounced our first price impossible.

Why this New-Day Type

This Hudson was the pioneer of an entirely new type of car. The type was conceived four years ago by Howard E. Coffin, our famous chief designer. It took him two years, aided by our whole force, to work out his conception.

The idea was refinement — the elimination of crudity—to result in a light, staunch car. The first step was a new-type motor, small bore, high speed. By reducing piston shocks that made it possible to lighten a hundred engine parts.

The next step was aluminum in place of cast iron. The next was special steels. In the next, a thousand parts were re-designed to combine lightness with strength.

The final result was a 7-passenger Six weighing under 3000 pounds. Old-time Sixes averaged 4500 pounds. That difference—the weight of 11 adults—cut tire and fuel cost in two.

The Vogue of Simplicity

Howard E. Coffin saw years ago that the trend was toward simplicity. Now everybody knows it. Excess and waste are unpopular. Good taste now calls for satisfaction without show.

Thus Hudson has become the class car. Its owners, in large part, are men who have paid two and three times its price. Hudson typifies the ideals of the times. This fact is conspicuous, wherever you look about.

All questions regarding this new-type car have been answered on the road. There are 15,000 Hudsons of this type in use. In two years men have driven them many million miles. And every owner vouches that the car is staunch, enduring, faultless, as well as economical.

Hudson now embodies all that any man can want. It is the fine car of the modern type. Only those men who still take pride in some form of excess will find any car more appealing.

Like No Other Car

Bear in mind that Hudson is like no other car. There are many models of this type, but there are scores of ways—important ways—in which Hudson is unlike them. Let us point them out. This is a Howard E. Coffin creation, a finished product, unique and unapproached.

Yesterday's Homers

Hyatt, Cards, off Vaughn, Cubs.

Roth, Sox, off Hagenman, Indians.

Many of the old boys are slipping—look at this: Honus Wagner stole two bases, got a triple and a single. Sam Crawford stole twice, besides getting a brace of doubles and a single.

Maybe Chick Gandel is a snail on the paths, too—he stole four times, besides getting three hits.

The Gods are against Bill Donovan, he won two games and climbed dizzily but "Pants" Rowland had to push his Sox to two victories, too.

The Yanks made three hits in the first game; the Athletics made ten, and the Yanks won. Consistency, thy name is baseball!

But probably Mr. Mack is giving thanks that he has a three hit chucker. Crowell is the way he endorses his pay check, and he's a collegian.

The Giants and Phils have a hard time deciding who has the better gang. Nine innings to a tie Tuesday, they came back yesterday and had to go eleven rounds for a decision. Yes, the Giants lost.

Mr. Loudermilk turned a somersault watching Mr. Cobb circle the bases. He's lucky he did not twist his head off.

Johnson may be slipping, but it would not be worth the risk to inform Bill Carrigan of it. Walter shutout the Red Sox yesterday.

Fielder Jones has won thirteen games with the Sloufeds, which is showing some speed for St. Louis.

Columbia, Penn and Stanford Out Early for a Spin on the Hudson River

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24.—With weather conditions better than any time during the past week, the five crews training for next Monday's intercollegiate regatta here were out on the water early today for the most strenuous practice they have so far undergone.

Jim Rice, coach of the Columbia crew, took his men up to the starting point and sent them down the stream under a fast time trial.

Vivian Nickalls put the Pennsylvania crew under the same practice, and sent them about two miles below Milton, where they were given a workout in starts for about half an hour.

Guerena took the Stanford crew to the starting point and ran them down the river to Milton, where they practiced starts and paddled back to the boathouse. The coast crew is showing splendid form.

YALE AND HARVARD TAKE TRIAL ROWS

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 24.—Practice spins to keep in condition was the most strenuous work indulged in today by the Yale and Harvard crews, which tomorrow stage another famous battle for water supremacy. William Meikleham, who will referee all contests, drilled both sets today in getting away with the pistol.

New London overflowed today with college men, old and present, and crew "fans." Hotels and rooming houses were jammed.

Word has been received that Secretary of the Navy Daniels will witness the regatta. He will arrive tomorrow morning on the government boat Dolphin.

BALKAN SITUATION

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, June 24.—The Balkan situation is causing grave concern in official circles here. The German minister to Bulgaria, Dr. Michahelles, has been summoned to Berlin for a conference with Foreign Secretary von Jagow. It was considered significant that the government should make the announcement today that "he will return."

Chandler Was Months Ahead of the "New Models"

THIS is "announcement" time, it seems. You are being told about "new models" and lower prices. Well the new models and the lower prices had to come, for the Chandler pointed the way months ago—not with a cheapened car but with a car that had made good for thousands of owners, at a price that made the industry gasp.

CHANDLER $1295

The Pioneer Light-Weight Six

The Chandler announced its New Season's car in January, at a price of only $1295. That price was hundreds of dollars under the price of any other car of really similar character.

And now, in spite of price reductions and new models rushed out in the hopes of meeting the Chandler competition, the Chandler is still underpriced.

Such a car at such a price literally stampeded the trade toward the Chandler. And it continues, alone in its leadership of the high-grade light six field.

Men who are motor-wise, men who know automobiles, know this is true. If there is anyone who does not know it is true, we ask the opportunity to show him and prove it.

All over the country the Chandler demand has been tremendous. The factory has reached a production of ten thousand cars for this year but even that great number will leave hundreds disappointed. Like other Chandler dealers everywhere, we have been "snowed under" with orders. In April and May we could not fill our orders by half. This month we are catching up pretty well with the demand. Our allotments for July and August are liberal and we expect to give prompt deliveries on orders received early.

BIG NIGHT ENDS 'BIG DAY' OF THE EAGLE CONVENTION

Crowds Throng Streets to Hear Bands Which Wander About Giving Concerts on Every Corner

EAGLES POSSESS THE CITY

North and South Side Parks Are Scenes of Big Gatherings Which Conclude Busy Day

A big night ended the "big day" of the Eagles' convention yesterday. Sidewalks were jammed, good-natured crowds chattered and laughed and shouted, and bands blared until a late hour, while the visiting Eagles took possession of the town. Skylarking was the order of the evening, and everywhere were Eagles in grotesque costumes, pulling off weird stunts to the clanking accompaniment of cowbells, tin pans and every other conceivable variety of noisemaker.

The program of the convention called for two large gatherings. While the big attraction centered in Copeland park on the North side, great crowds gathered in Riverside park at 8 o'clock. Many enjoyed the river excursion, while hundreds listened to the concert in the newly erected band stand.

Wausau Band Plays

With Mississippi breeze blowing inshore, the Wausau band, one of the most brilliant features of the parade of yesterday afternoon, entertained with a concert. Between the numbers, J. I. LaCerte, prominent Wausau Eagle, sang several solos.

Downtown streets were a riot of people. La Crosse joined heartily with Eagles from all over Wisconsin in the biggest night of their convention. Gay scenes went on in the Eagles' Fifth street club rooms, and everyone everywhere gave over the evening to Eagledom.

Bands, all of the six that kept time for the parade, were parading about the streets, supported by their home aeries, and concerts were frequent. The Second Regiment band of Marshfield played a number of selections in front of the Stoddard hotel, and one of its members sang in a pleasant baritone to the band's accompaniment.

Milwaukee Has Party

Inside the Stoddard the Milwaukee delegation chartered the dining room, and installed the big Brunkhorst band they brought with them at the end of the room. The Milwaukeeans filled the room, and the concert of the band lasted until the deputation left for its train to start for home.

Janesville's drill team, whose cadet gray uniforms attracted much attention in the parade yesterday, broke camp this morning and started back on a special car which brought them. They spent their one night here under canvas at Twenty-fifth and Main streets.

"U" BOAT BUSY

LONDON, June 24.—Shipping circles received advices today that six small fishing vessels have been shelled and sunk off the coast of Scotland by a German U boat.

BIG BIRDS OF AERIE NO. 1254

GEORGE E. SCHNEEBERGER, Junior Past Worthy President, was satisfied with two cups of coffee, unlike Colonel Roosevelt. Unlike the colonel, again, the third cup was pressed upon him, and he had hard work escaping it. Mr. Schneeberger was president of Aerie 1254 two terms in succession. Then he announced that he was through, but he had a harder campaign to keep from being president the third time than he had to be elected to the chair for his first term. Although he managed to escape the presidential duty, Mr. Schneeberger remains one of the most active members of the aerie.

FRANK MUTH, vice president, has a cinch on his job, apparently, although the job is no cinch. He has been vice-president for three years, and apparently he likes the place, for he has refused the presidency of the aerie when offered to him. Earnest, hard-working and loyal, Mr. Muth has won the reputation of being one of the aerie's most efficient officers.

JOSEPH F. LAPITZ, chairman of the committee on hotels and accommodations, wears a smile that would do credit to the host of the best packed of all the hotels on his list. The smile was not just assumed for the picture, either. It is part of Joe's regular face. Speaking of Joe's face, maybe the comment of one of the state officers Monday night would be illuminating. He was looking through the convention handbook, when he saw the Lapitz smile. "Who's this?" he asked a local officer. "That's Joe Lapitz," he was told. "Gee, I thought it was John Bunny," said the state official.

JOHN NEUMAN, Inner Guard, is young in years compared to some of the other officers, but is old in service of the aerie. Like Frank Muth, he is apparently a fixture in his position, having held it for three terms with credit to himself and the office. He has been active in the work of the convention.

F. H. GREBNER, Treasurer, is the oldest officer in point of membership on the entire list. He has been treasurer of Aerie 1254 since the memory of the average Eagle runs not to the contrary, and has filled the job very satisfactorily during his incumbency. Also, he ranks with the most ancient of the La Crosse Eagles, having been one of the original charter members of the aerie when it was formed in 1905.

B. E. TURNER, Worthy Chaplain, is a jolly, pleasant spoken person who began his business career as a printer's devil and is now foreman of the Patriot chapel. It has been suggested that it was this fact which led to his nomination and election as chaplain, but however it came about, it is the unanimous opinion that it was a lucky selection. Mr. Turner is in his second term as chaplain.

J. W. HAINES, Outer Guard of the aerie, has established himself in the minds of his fellow Eagles as a model of faithfulness to the order. He has an extraordinary record of attention to the duties of his office, having been on hand at practically every meeting during his term. Outside of the meetings where he guards the door, Mr. Haines is pressman for the Patriot Publishing company.

Lesson in English.

An illustration of the awful possibilities of the misuse of "gotten" for "got," says a correspondent in The Writer, is given by the story of the man who telegraphed to his wife: "Have gotten tickets for the opera tonight. Meet me there at 7:45." She met him there at 7:45 with eight friends, for the telegram when it reached her read: "Have got ten tickets." The use of "gotten" for "got" is a mark of ignorance, rather than refinement. "Gotten" is used by those who desire to be thought "genteel."

RUSSIANS RETIRE IN PERFECT ORDER SAYS WAR OFFICE

Right Wing Attacks Enemy Inflicting Heavy Loss Southeast of Ravaruska

CLAIM SLAUGHTER OF ENEMY

Few Prisoners Fell Into the Hands of Austro-Germans in Fall of Lemberg Is Claim

PETROGRAD, June 24.—The Russians are retiring from Lemberg in perfect order, the war office announced today. North of the city the Slav right wing has attacked the enemy's flank, wiping out three companies and checking the enemy's attempt to press eastward south of Ravaruska In southeast Galicia the Russians have made 1,000 prisoners in a bayonet battle and are threatening the right flank of the Austro-Germans moving toward Volhynia.

The war office, though admitting the evacuation of Lemberg, asserted today that the Russian garrison slaughtered large Austrian forces in the final fight before the Galician capital. Few prisoners fell into the hands of the enemy. The Russians in their retreat have surrounded and captured a number of small bodies of the enemy who presed the Slav rear guard too closely.

A great battle has been begun along the river Sereth, in southeastern Galicia. The Russians are outnumbered, but occupy strategic positions of great importance

PHILADELPHIA GETS NEXT CONVENTION OF ADVERTISERS

CHICAGO, June 24—Philadelphia was yesterday selected by the executive committee of the Advertising Clubs of the World as the 1916 convention city.

It was taken for granted generally today that the selection of Philadelphia for the next meeting place of the Associated Advertising clubs would be formally ratified this afternoon. Under the compromise by which it was agreed Philadelphia would get the 1916 meeting it was also agreed that Cincinnati will get the gathering in 1917 if present plans do not miscarry.

The election of officers today will be a cut and dried affair Herbert S Houston of New York has been endorsed by the executive committee for president to succeed William Woodhead of San Francisco. P. S. Florea of Indianapolis was endorsed for secretary-treasurer. George W. Thomason of Dallas, Texas, is the leading candidate for vice president.

Judging Distance.

Many people find it difficult to judge how far off a sound comes from, and, of course, in regard to big guns fired on battleships at sea, it is almost impossible for an ordinary person to form an opinion; but the distance at which various sounds can be heard are both curious and remarkable. For instance, roughly speaking, the whistle of a locomotive is heard 3,300 yards through the air; the noise of a railway train, 2,800 yards; the report of a rifle and the bark of a dog, 1,800 yards; an orchestra or the roll of a drum, 1,600 yards; the human voice reaches to a distance of 1,000 yards; the croaking of frogs, 900 yards; the chirping of crickets, 800 yards.

GERMAN PAPER ATTACKS WILSON

Recently Suppressed Paper Does Not Like President for Suggesting Peace Conference

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, June 24.—The Deutsche Tages-Zeitung, recently suppressed by the government because of its articles on the German-American situation, reappeared today with an attack on President Wilson.

The Tages-Zeitung said there were reports that President Wilson had suggested a peace conference to be held in Switzerland. It asserted that though Wilson had repeatedly declared he had closed the neutral Panama canal to neutral trade, thus accelerating the shipment of war munitions to the allies and particularly strengthening Russia.

"At the same time," said the Tages-Zeitung, "President Wilson is demanding safe conduct for swimming arsenals supplying France and England with munitions."

ZINC MINE BONANZA

JOPLIN, Mo., June 24.—A zinc mine lease that two months ago was offered for $8,000 with no takers, sold for $150,000 as a result of the zinc boom.

Lown and Hastings who held the lease for the ten acre tract, sold it to the S. Y. Ramage & Company of Oil City, Pa.

A. A. Liesenfeld, Who Runs The Convention And Is The Busiest Man In La Crosse, Has Postponed Sleeping Until The End Of Week

A little room in the roster of big birds among the Eagles, please, for the "busiest man in La Crosse." He's Adolph A. Liesenfeld, who abandoned the printing business this week to make the Eagles' convention a success, and managed to succeed signally.

Mr. Liesenfeld is a medium-sized, thickish person, of surprising agility, especially above the collar, as his activities this week have demonstrated. The Eagles of Aerie 1254 put it something like this: "Charlie Dittman built the aerie and brought the convention here, and Adolph Liesenfeld runs the convention."

That's Adolph's job—running the convention. His title is a non-committal "chairman of the executive committee," but when for "executive committee" you read "convention board" you'll have a better idea of what his duties are. The executive committee is made up of the heads of the reception, entertainment, advertising, decorating and other committees. The men at the heads of them have made reputations for successful handling of their jobs, and they all took orders from Adolph. When they got stuck, Adolph pulled 'em out of trouble, and otherwise saved the ship every time she threatened to go down.

Adolph's a busy Eagle outside of convention week, also. He's chairman of the board of trustees of Aerie 1254, and one of the most active officers of the organization.

Adolph has not had the convention-al good time this week, as might be though. He's been too busy. He didn't get to bed at all from 5 o'clock Monday morning until midnight Tuesday, and then he only took six hours sleep. His print shop knows him no more. He hasn't been there for a week, and doesn't expect to get back for another. You see, he's planning to take a nap from along about Saturday evening until Wednesday or Thursday.

BOAT CARRYING DERNBURG HELD

Norwegian Boat with German Propogandist Aboard Detained by British at Kirkwall

LONDON, June 24.—The Norwegian steamer Bergensfjord, with Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, German propagandist, and his wife aboard, has been detained at Kirkwall, with the Swedish steamer Varing, from Savannah. The Bergensfjord was due to reach Bergen today. The government has not made public its reasons for detaining the steamer.

Dr. Dernburg and his wife sailed from New York June 12 under a guarantee of safe conduct by the allies. It is believed here that the steamer on which he was a passenger may have been detained because of reports that German reservists were on board.

The New York Tribune, in an early edition today, printed an interview with Dr. Dernburg, which the latter granted on condition that it be not published until after his safe arrival in Norway. In this interview Dr. Dernburg expressed a desire to go to the front. The Tribune withdrew the interview from its last edition when a London cable early today brought word that the steamer was detained.

The action of the British authorities in stopping the steamer is not at all unusual. It is understood that Scandinavian vessels crossing the war zone have agreed to enter Kirkwell for inspection to prevent controversies over their cargoes. It is possible that under such an agreement the steamer aboard which Dr. Dernburg was a passenger voluntarily put into port.

Saw New Era of Warfare.

At the first interview between Napoleon and the veteran generals whom he was to command Rampon undertook to give the young commander some advice. Napoleon, who was impatient of advice, exclaimed: "Gentlemen, the art of war is in its infancy The time has passed in which enemies are mutually to appoint the place of combat, advance hat in hand and say: 'Gentlemen, will you have the goodness to fire?'"—"Table Talk and Opinions of Napoleon Buonaparte."

His Occupation.

The Housewife—"You have the appearance of a hard drinker." The Hobo—"Madam, you wrong me. Since we specialized the profession I am regarded merely as an expert sampler. T'anks fer de pie."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Nine-tenths of All Stomach Trouble Said to Be Due to Acidity.

A Physician's Advice on Cause and Cure.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, commonly termed sour stomach or heartburn, which not only irritated and inflamed the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemns the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of ordinary bisurated magnesia, which, by neutralizing the acidity of the food, removes the source of the trouble. He contends that it is as foolish to treat the stomach itself as it would be for a man who stepped on a tack to rub liniment on the foot without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself — neutralize the acid and the stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless, so long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Sufferers from acidity, sour stomach or heartburn should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia from O. T. Erhart or any druggist, and take a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after meals, repeating in fifteen minutes, if necessary, this being the dose which the doctor has found most efficacious in all cases.

NAME SELLERS OF SEASON TICKETS

Prospects for a large sale of season tickets for the Chautauqua to be held at Copeland park during Wisconsin week are good. The entertainment has been arranged by the Twentieth Century club of La Crosse. There will be six days of education and recreation, with twelve complete programs. The North side has been divided into three districts. Mrs. R. B. Harris, 1413 Charles street, sells in the territory of Berlin, Charles and Prospect streets; Mrs. O. W. Reynolds, 1452 Charles street, has charge of the sale on Kane, George, and Wood streets; Mrs. Earl Wheaton, 1427 Berlin street, sells on Avon, Caledonia, Rose, Mill and Sumner streets.

The people of the North side must purchase their tickets of these ladies only, as no others are permitted to sell in their territory.

PARIS INTERVIEW INACCURATE SAYS VATICAN ORGAN

ROME, June 24.—The vatican organ Observatore Romano commenting today upon an interview with Pope Benedict that appeared in the Paris La Liberte, warns the public that journalistic interpretations of the pope's thoughts are bound to contain inaccuracies.

The vatican organ does not directly repudiate any of the alleged statements of the pope that aroused resentment here, but declares that there are several inaccuracies so obvious that it would be useless to point them out.

Ozone.

The air of mountains possesses a greater amount of ozone than that of the seashore. What particular effect ozone may have upon the health of man has not yet been clearly made out. In some directions it seems to be absolutely injurious. There is good evidence to show that it is often productive of bronchial affections, and especially of influenza. During epidemics of this disease an increased amount of ozone has been found in the atmosphere. On the other hand, there is no doubt that ozone is a great purifier of the atmosphere, and it is perhaps owing to the increased amount of this agent in the air of mountain regions that its salubrity is in a great measure due.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, June 24.—Prices generally were slightly down at the opening of the stock market today. There were a few exceptions. Bethlehem Steel sold up ¾ to 168½; United States Steel sold up ¼ to 60⅝.

The market grew dull toward the end of the first hour. Despite losses in several leaders the market preserved a fairly good undertone. United States Rubber dropped to 56¾, a net loss of 5¾.

An improving tendency was noted in the second hour. United States Rubber sold at 57⅞, a gain of ⅞ over the day's low price.

There was a reactionary movement in the early afternoon. United States Rubber and Canadian Pacific led the downward movement, the former declining to 55 and the latter to 145¾, a loss of ¼.

The stock market closed weak.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, June 24.—Heavy rains throughout the southwest, which are delaying the crop, and interpretation of the defeat of the Russians at Lemberg that there is less and less chance that Russian wheat surplus ever will be drawn upon, caused a rush to buy today and wheat prices consequently were higher. Opening prices represented over-night advances of from 1⅜ to ½c. There was a slight reaction early, but later on prices at one time went ⅛ and ⅝c higher than the opening.

Corn, after opening ⅛c higher and ¼c lower than yesterday's close suffered a reaction downward today. Prices at one time were ⅜c and ¼c below the opening. Scattered selling with few buyers was the chief cause.

Oats followed wheat. There was little activity with the majority on the selling side.

Provisions were lower on larger receipts.

BRITISH CRUISER TORPEDOED SUNDAY

BERLIN, via Wireless to Sayville, June 24.—A German submarine attacked a British armored cruiser, apparently of the Minotaur class, about 100 miles off the Firth of Forth last Saturday, the admiralty announced today. A torpedo struck the ship, but the extent of the damage was not ascertained.

The British admiralty announced last night that a torpedo struck the cruiser Foxburgh in the North sea Sunday night, but that the damage was not serious, and there were no casualties. Though the Minotaur is considerably larger than the Foxburgh, both ships carry four stacks and are of similar appearance. This probably led to the German error.

INDIAN PETITIONS FOR COMMUTATION

Man Convicted of Murdering Mary Dickson Asks President for Life Sentence

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 24.—Jim Waupoose, the Menominee Indian who was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Geiger to be hanged for the murder of Mary Dickson, his white sweetheart, on the Keshena Indian reservation, April 17, today petitioned President Wilson for commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment.

The petition, which was prepared by Waupoose's attorney, William Kershaw, pleaded that the death sentence be commuted in deference to the laws of Wisconsin which abolished capital punishment in 1848.

GERMANY TO MAKE CONCESSIONS FOR HUMANITY'S SAKE

Assurance Is Given That Reply to Note Will Guarantee Safety to All Neutrals

WOULD MARK ALL VESSELS

German Diplomats Cautious in Framing Reply on Account of Bearing on International Law

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, via The Hague, June 24.—Germany, in her reply to the second American note, will make important concessions in the interests of those "principles of humanity" for which President Wilson declared America was contending. This was the positive assurance I received today.

Germany may even give assurance that lives of all neutrals will be safeguarded. It is possible the German reply, now in the preliminary stages of formation, may suggest certain distinguishing marks for vessels, carrying non-contraband cargoes to insure them against submarine attack.

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg desires that Germany's answer go forward to Washington as soon as possible. But in view of its bearing on future international law, German diplomats are proceeding cautiously in framing a reply. The German answer, it is stated, will mark a distinct advance toward securing that freedom of the seas for which, Foreign Secretary von Jagow assured the United Press in a recent interview, Germany is fighting. The answer, therefore, may be delayed for two weeks, but it is hoped that it will renew the feeling of friendliness between the two nations.

The public is disposed to view the suspension of the Tages-Zeitung quite calmly. The feeling here is that no citizen should sanction a criticism of the leaders of the empire at a time like the present.

War Office News of Fighting

ROME

ROME, June 24.—An intense artillery battle has developed along the entire Austro-Italian front. The enemy has been shelling Italian positions in the mountain districts and along the Isonzo for twenty-four hours. Italian guns are replying with great vigor.

General Cadorna reported today that enemy infantry has attacked at several points, principally at night, but has everywhere been repulsed. Particularly violent attacks were delivered in the regions of Monte Piano, Val Grande, Val Piccolo and Freikofel.

Shells tumbled several buildings in ruins. The French gunners replied and the artillery duel lasted for several hours. All along the battle front from Arras to a point north of Souchez the most violent cannonading has been going on since early yesterday.

The official communique this afternoon reported an unsuccessful attempt by the enemy to drive in the French line near Dompierre. The Germans first exploded a mine under a section of French trenches and then shelled the adjacent earthworks. French artillery sprayed the ground before the trenches with a deadly fire. The Germans attacked in considerable force but were easily repulsed.

VIENNA

VIENNA, via Berlin Wireless, June 24.—The war office in a review of the results of the month of Austro-Italian war, declared today that Italy has failed to accomplish anything of importance.

"Our troops in the southwest maintain their positions on or near the frontier," it was stated.

HAVRE

HAVRE, June 24.—Belgian troops operating in German Southwest Africa have captured Kumissenje, an important station on Lake Kivu, the Belgian war office announced today.

CONSTANTINOPLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin Wireless, June 24.—Turkish troops in the region of Olti have inflicted a severe defeat on the Russians, driving them back with heavy losses, a war office statement asserted today.

"Near Olti we took 3,000 yards of the heights of Karadagh Wednesday afternoon," said the official statement. "In the district of Kale Beghazi, near the Turkish frontier, the enemy fled eastward. We took hundreds of cases of ammunition and a large quantity of war materials."

TWO KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

CHICAGO, June 24—O. W. Franklin, of Burlington, Iowa, and Mrs. Eva Luisdual of Chicago were instantly killed in an early morning automobile crash today.

With J. Wicker of High Point, Iowa, and Miss Hattie Briggs of Chicago, Franklin and Mrs. Luisdual were returning from a fish dinner at Robey, Ind. Their car struck a wagon at 92nd street, careened to one side and turned turtle after smashing into a telegraph pole. Wicker, Miss Briggs and Chauffeur F. H. Flack were badly injured.

DEAD BY THOUSANDS COVER GALLIPOLI

Eye Witness Says Slaughter at Dardanelles Is Horrible on Both Sides

PARIS, June 24.—Thousands of bodies literally carpeted the sandy slopes of Gallipoli peninsula in a seven day bloody combat at the Dardanelles, an official eye-witness statement reported today.

"The Turkish trenches were piled high with cadavers," said the eye-witness. "While the allies lost heavily, the Turkish losses on Krithia slopes were enormous and we took many prisoners. The English entered one trench from the rear and capturing 500 prisoners."

Recounting the fighting from June 1 to June 8, the eye-witness declared that the allies pressed forward from 150 to 400 yards on a front of a mile and a quarter.

"On June 4 an attack of this nature was begun against the Turkish positions along the cliffs bordering the Gulf of Saros to the abrupt ravine of Kere Vesdere. Our artillery went into action at 11 a. m. and pounded the enemy's works for an hour. At noon our entire line crept forward over the sands, directing its principal effort toward the Turkish center. In a final charge the British rushed the enemy's trenches and found nearly all the defenders had been blown to pieces by explosive shells.

"The Turks who had been captured said they were told the most fabulous stories of Austro-German victories to keep up their spirits. They were told that Russia had offered seven of her provinces for peace, that Rumania had declared war against the allies, and that 2,000,000 Austrians had crushed Italy at the outbreak of the war."

CAR THIEVES HELD IN KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 24.—Three motor car thieves, who used a clever scheme of alteration, and who had worked in Chicago and St. Louis until it became too hot for them, are today held by the police charged with stealing three cars here.

They gave the names of Jack Hall, St. Louis; Ed Long, Chicago, and George Burns, Louisville.

Detectives say the gang altered the motor and frame numbers of the stolen cars, changed the accessories and painted the cars. They were caught at work in their garage altering a local car.
